Hi,

Please find the reference information below:

Antonio was assigned with a very ambition task to automate a large part of the network infrastructure within the Ericsson test environment. The task is highly difficult involving many different systems for interactions with different APIs and functionality. Adding to that the complexity of understanding a new area and the implementation of the design in Ericsson.

Antonio was working both local and remote and had a very structured work, quickly understood the task and the environment which was needed for the integration. With a structured work and good reports of progress he completed the original task assigned.

The outcome of the work is a huge success saving many hours of work for the operations team every day.

Technical details

The task involved using python as language for logic and "glue" between the different systems which included firewalls, routers, switches, CMDBs, JIRA (ticket system) and other internal support systems using a mix of APIs including REST and "native" APIs such as SSH.

Antonio has performed his work and tasks with considerable care and great interest, to our complete satisfaction. He has proven to be an enterprising person who assumes assignments with responsibility very well. Antonio also works easily with other people.

We can highly recommend Antonio to a wide range of assignments.

BR,
